Farmer Funn's 2021 Program for "Tales and Tails" Summer Reading
Now booking in-person and online dates!

As Farmer Funn, Todd Avery (award-winning educator, director, and actor) uses creative dramatics, storytelling and interactive crafting to explore existing literature and guide children of all ages in developing their own stories. In this high-energy, audience-participation 45 to 60 minute workshop exploring life on the "Funn Farm," attendees will learn that "Tall Tales" are stories told as if they were true but contain exaggerated or unbelievable parts. Some tall tales are exaggerations of real events, while others are completely make-believe. Tall tales are usually very funny because the exaggerations in the story tend to be the main focus. Using this key type of American Folk Literature, Farmer Funn will share how storytelling can help children solve problems and increase inner harmony. Farmer Funn will plant the seeds for children's imaginations to grow tall and strong like the crops in his fields.
